Each Man Saves His Record and Gets

Half of the Gate Receipts-Ano other Draw. CHICAGO, April 1 .- The long talked of fight between the feather weights, Ike Weir, otherwise known as the "Belfast Spider," and Frank Murphy, of England, at Koutts, Ind., (an account of which was published exclusively in the INDEPENDENT Sunday morning) ended in a most unsatisfactory manner. The referee, after the eightieth round, was obliged to declare the fight off for the day and announced that it would be finished some time before Tues-Spider," and Frank Murphy, of England, would be finished some time before Tuesday. It is extremely doubtful, however, if the men will come together again, certainly not within that time, and another draw but ere you set out either as a tourist, comwill probably have to go on record. mercial traveller or emigrant-whether The fight was a most peculiar one. For eighteen rounds it was as scientific and hardly fought a battle as ever has been seen; you go by rail, steamship or steamboatprovide yourself with Hostetter's Stomach but the other sixty-two rounds, save the sixty-seventh and sixty eighth, amounted to absolutely nothing. In not more than ten of them was a blow struck, and most of the time the men did not even put their hands up. The explanation for this lies in Bitters, which the travelling public recognizes as the finest medical safeguard and nizes as the finest medical safeguard and preventitive of seasickness with which any one journeying by land or water can be provided. It furnishes to the western pioneer adequate protection against malaria, rheumatism, and those disorders of the bowels which miasma tainted water beget. Its sedative effect upon a stomach perturbed by the rocking of a ship is truly precised and it is a central apparities. sixty-seventh and sixty eighth, amounted to absolutely nothing. In not more than ten of them was a blow struck, and most of the time the men did not even put their hands up. The explanation for this lies in the fact that after ten or twelve rounds the Spider's hands went back on him and he could do nothing with them. Murphy, who proved himself to be a most plucky fighter, but a most wretched general, failed to get any advantage out of the predicament of Weir, who kept dancing just out of reach. Another thing was that Murphy was not in the best condition, as was shown by the great welts left from each blow. The Spider proved much the cleverer of the two, and the way in which he sailed at Murphy during the first few rounds, smashing him first on one eye and then on the other, then on the nose and twice knocking him down with a resounding crack on the neck, convinced many that he could have won the fight had his hands held out. There were others, however, who were loud in their assertions that Murphy showed himself the best man of the two. He certainly proved himself one of the gamiest men that ever entered the ring, and with his two eyes almost closed and in spite of having been sent to grass twice, he rushed his long-limbed antagonist all over the ring. This was in the early part of the fight, however. During the rest of it neither seemed in clined to do much, and the two men alternately chalfed each other, the spectators occasionally varying the monotony of the proceedings by taking a hand in the talking match and urging the fighters to give them their money's worth. After the sixty-sixth round had been fought without a blow, Weir made a splendid rally. The sixty-seventh and sixty-eighth were as lively as the most bloodthirsty could desire and Weir almosthad Murphy knocked out. The spurt was a short one however, and the old tactics were again resumed, under the instruction of the backers. When the spectators saw nothing could be expected, they soon tired of the show and a postponement was readily made at their turbed by the rocking of a ship is truly magical, and it is a capital appetizer and nerve invigorator. Excellent is it in billiousness and kidney inaction, and it counteracts, in a remarkable degree, the effects of fatigue, physical or mental. After wetting and exposure in inclement weather, it should be used as a preventive. HELENA, Oct. 7, 1887.

I was suffering from an unusually bad cough, my lungs were sore and congested, and I consulted one of the best physicians in Helena, whose prescriptions falled to relieve me. I became alarmed, and at the suggestion of a friend purchased a bottle of Acker's English Remedy for coughs, and after taking it according to directions was completely cured. I therefore cheerfully recommend it.

I had a racking cough and inflamed throat and bought a bottle of Acker's English Remedy upon the recommendation of a friend, and was entirely cured by it. I consider it a never failing remedy for a cough.

have it stopped.

Shortly after this a queer looking specimen, representing himself to be an officer, the crowd and men, representing himself to be an officer, worked his way through the crowd and cried, "This fight is stopped." Before he had a chance to say anything more he received a crack behind the ear that sent him over the chairs and with the aid of several more vicious blows he soon reached the outer air in a very dazed condition.

In the sixty-seventh round the Spider made his splendid raily, and with bang, crack, smash, seemed to hit Murphy where he pleased. Towards the end he had the little Englishman a bit groggy and Mc-Avoy yelled to the Spider to finish him, but Murphy seemed able to take care of himself and time was called. In the sixty-eight Weir went at it again, but was not able to do much damage and this proved the last fighting round of the battle.

It is understood that the match will not be fought again. Parson Davis said to be fought again. Parson Davis said to have the men come together again would be brutal, and that he is willing to divide the $1,500 purse equally between the men. If this is done it would mean that the fighters each would obtain one-half of the nighters each would obtain one-half of the net gate receipts. The purse and gate re-ceipts are one and the same thing. The affair, therefore, was practically a contest for the gate receipts and one explanation of the listnessness of the fighters during the last two-thirds of the affair, is by that time they were practically agreed it would time they were practically agreed it would be most agreeable to make a division and not injure their future business by spoiling the other man's reputation by a knock-

Dr. Conde rated her soundly for running after false prophets, and insisted that the word Schweinfurth meant "devil's hog." Schwein, hog, and furth, the sea, and that he was an imposter like one of the swine into which Christ cast the devils. This caused a great outbreak from the half dozen male Beekmanites. Disciple Whitney made some remarks offensive to members of the church, and called them "scribes and pharisees." Deacon Waliace seized Whitney, another disciple, by the collar and threw him headlong from the room. The other Beekmanites fled. They held a meeting last night and vowed they would yet force the Westminister people to receive them and accept the truth of their doctrine.
